We did a charcoal drawing. We did it to try drawing a self-portrait of us. We used charcoal and drawing pencils, first we sketch an egg shape for a head then we sketch a line from the top to the bottom. Then we drew a line across in the middle then we did the same thing at the bottom two times after we drew two small lines from the first line across to the third line. Then we drew the eyes at the first line across and the nose at the second line across. After that we drew the mouth at the third line between the two small lines then we drew the ears aligned with the eyes. What’s hard about it is drawing the egg shape good so it’s not too big or too small. The fun thing about it is that we get to draw something. Tristan Pasana—Year 7
